

C. Mutual Confidentiality & Non-Disclosure Agreement

Purpose: Protects Company's client list, pricing, property assignments, and methods. Mutual, so each side's information is covered.

1. Confidential Information. Means non-public information disclosed by either party, including Company's property-management clients and contacts, property and unit lists, pricing, bids, margins, schedules, methods, software, and business plans, whether marked or not.

2. Obligations. The receiving party will use Confidential Information only to perform under the Master Agreement, not disclose it to third parties, and protect it with reasonable care. Subcontractor will not contact, market to, or collect data on Company's clients/properties for its own benefit.

3. Exclusions. Information that is public through no fault of the receiver, already known, independently developed, or lawfully received from a third party is not confidential. Disclosure required by law is permitted with prompt notice.

4. Trade Secrets. Company's client and pricing information is asserted as a trade secret under the Texas Uniform Trade Secrets Act and the federal Defend Trade Secrets Act; misappropriation may result in injunctive relief and damages.

5. Return / Destruction. On request or termination, the receiver returns or destroys Confidential Information and copies.

6. Duration. Obligations continue during the relationship and for 3 years after it ends (indefinitely for trade secrets).
